

I pay for my phone service, whether it be land line or cellular. Telemarketers do not. I consider my phone to be private, and that invasions into my privacy, once my intentions are known via the do not call list, is not acceptable! They are not restricted via the postal service and that is where they should stay. If criminal agencies need a warrent for a phone tap, shouldn't the American people have a right to the privacy of their own home and phone? The vast majority of Americans feel just like I do. That is why we demanded that our Representatives create legislation to outlaw these types of calls in the first place.
